U.S. Farmers See Soviet Failures

American farmers in Russia have been shown the "new lands" opened up by Nikita Khrushchev.

The wheat crop was sparse. Cattle already had been turned into the spindly fields of seared corn.

Only a few months ago Georgi Malenkov had been forced out of office. In the going he apologized to people for his failure to raise agricultural production. There followed Khrushchev's ambitious plans. Thousands of young people were sent to the Siberian lands with tractors and tools to "open the virgin lands."

Now, American farmers report they have seen what drought—an implacable foe in any land—has done to the new plans and lands.

Those who watch with care the Soviet newspapers report that Pravda and Izvestia, the official newspapers of the Communist party and the government, are critical of agricultural shortages and ask improvement. These newspapers publish only what the party orders. Just how this fits in with Khrushchev's future remains for the future to reveal. Malenkov did no worse.

Geography

One of the more frightening exercises of our day is to look at the world map and see the vast expanse of the Russian land mass. Europe actually is revealed to be a sort of grotesque-shaped peninsula of the tremendous area of land called the U.S.S.R. Its potential of manpower, materials and aggression is awesome. Beside it the land mass of the United States is small indeed.

But, there is another phase of it. The ancient capital of the Russians lies on a northern latitude—about that of Hudson Bay.

More than half the gargantuan mass of Soviet land is quite far to the north. The growing season in the drought-stricken lands, where the American farmers were, is brief. Even now it is moving on toward frost. Only in the Ukraine and other southern regions is there a really adequate growing season.

Nowhere is there a section to compare with our vast Midwest, where the corn and wheat fields stretch to the far horizon, like seas green and golden. There is no counterpart of our wheat fields such as Nebraska, the Dakotas and other prairie states give us. Even they have known the disaster of drought, dust storms and plagues of insects.

But, so blessed by geography and latitudes are we that our growing season rarely allows for failures so disastrous that the nation lacks for food.

Even our efficient agriculturists would be hard pushed to succeed in Russia.

Red Tape

There is another factor. Russia now publicly admits she is changing her industrial plans to conform with those she has seen in this country. In the Communist, or Marxist system, the big plants produce a variety of items. A sprawling tractor plant may also turn out bicycles and electrical appliances. It would also manufacture the screws, wires, wheels and spokes necessary for the varied products. Soviet leaders are vastly interested in our system of assembly, and by the secondary suppliers—with all necessary parts flowing to the central plant.

They plan to adopt our methods. It will take a long time.

Agriculture is even more caught in Communist red tape. The Russians have shamefully exploited their farmers. Moscow fixes low farm prices to the farmer. The government then sells the farm produce to the people for much higher prices. Much of the Soviet government's budget comes from squeezing the farmers.

The Russian population increases at a faster rate than farm production. The expanding numbers of city residents earn wages. They react as do city dwellers everywhere. They like to eat well. The demand for meat is especially heavy. But, the cattle population is lower than in the days of the Czars. There isn't enough feed. The farmer cannot use his own initiative. He is in the grip of a frightened bureaucracy, trying to carry out directives which do not fit all problems.

This is one reason they want a breathing spell. Let us remember they have not changed at heart. They still would like to destroy us.

CAR SMASHED AS HIGH WINDS SNAP TREE ON GREENLEAF ROAD
Another Falling Tree Demolished Porch in East Atlanta Sunday

Atlanta Winds Smash Car, Porch; Hot, Humid Due; Chance of Showers

Possible thundershowers were predicted for Atlanta again Monday and Tuesday after stormy weather Sunday caused minor damage in some sections of the city.

The forecast for Atlanta and north Georgia calls for partly cloudy skies, continued hot and humid Monday and Tuesday, with a chance of afternoon thundershowers both days.

Temperatures in the Atlanta area are expected to range from 73 to 95 degrees both days. Sunday's extremes were 70 and 83.

A car was smashed at the Ralph M. Pacheco residence, 1355 Greenleaf Rd., SE, when high winds felled a huge tree.

A 100-foot oak tree snapped by wind gusts tore down electric wires and demolished a porch at the Herbert Hindmon residence at 835 Moreland Ave., SE. Mr. and Mrs. Hindmon were in the house, but escaped injury.

Air Crash Near NAS Kills Pilot

A Macon Naval Reserve pilot was killed instantly when his plane crashed into a pine thicket about a mile and a half from the Atlanta Naval Air Station Sunday afternoon.

The pilot was identified as Lt. (JG) John Hume Hyrne, 27, of 3135 Brookwood Apts., Macon, a civilian employee in the cost account department at Warner Robins Air Force Base, Macon.

The F4U Corsair, a single-seater fighter, crashed about 1:50 p.m.

Lt. Cmdr. J. L. Coleman, public information officer at the Chamberlain station, said the engine apparently failed on takeoff and the pilot tried to return to the base. Apparently seeing this was impossible, he sought to keep the craft airborne until he could make the unfinished Gainesville expressway at the Chamberlain-Tucker road.

The plane crashed on the south bank of the expressway in a thicket and the pilot was killed instantly, Coleman said.

A native of Savannah, Lt. Hyrne is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sue Hyrne, of Gainesville; his mother, Mrs. William Godfrey Hyrne Sr., of Savannah; a sister, Mrs. Donald O. Mundale, of Asheville, S.C.; and three brothers, William Godfrey Hyrne Jr., of Norfolk, Va.; George Whitehead Lamar Hyrne, of Savannah, and Jonathan L. Hyrne, of Oak Ridge, Tenn.

A 1955 graduate of the University of Georgia, young Hyrne was married about a month ago.

Dixon-Yates Facts Hidden Deliberately, Senators Say

By ALVIN SHUSTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Eisenhower administration officials were accused today of deliberately concealing facts from the public and Congress in the Dixon-Yates power controversy.

The charge came from three senators who as a unit of a Senate subcommittee conducted lengthy hearings into the controversial power contract. They were Democrats Kefauver (Tenn.) O'Mahony (Wyo.), and Republican Langer (ND).

They charged that officials had shown "contempt of Congress and its constitutional powers" through the use of "devious, indirect, and improper administrative practices."

They singled out for particular criticism President Eisenhower's personal staff, including Sherman Adams, an assistant.

"One of the shameful things about the Dixon-Yates deal is the way the President's staff apparently has played fast and loose with the facts even where he is concerned," they declared.

The senators' attack was in the

Treasure Hunters Bring Up Silver In Florida Shipwreck

FORT PIERCE, Fla., Aug. 21 (P)—Treasure hunters today brought up two silver bars from the wreckage of an ancient ship that has already yielded another chunk of silver and several cannon.

The divers also found a piece of yellow metal today that they were unable to identify. They hoped it was gold but feared it might be brass.

The two silver bars weighed more than two pounds each and were shaped like wedges. The silver bar brought up earlier, similar in shape, has been sold for "more than a hundred dollars."

Doubt Grows Flier To Be Choice Of Margaret, Now Free To Wed

LONDON, Aug. 21—The eyes of Britain were upon Princess Margaret today as she quietly celebrated her 25th birthday with members of the royal family at Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

Her picture appeared on the front pages of most of Britain's Sunday papers. And frequent reference was made in their columns to the fact that she now is free to marry without the consent of her sister, Queen Elizabeth II.

There was relatively little speculation about the possibility of her marrying Group Capt. Peter Townsend, British air attaché in Brussels, whose name has been linked with hers.

The small space devoted to speculation might have been due to the fact that that subject was thoroughly explored by some of the popular dailies last week or it might have been the result of the feeling, which seems to be grow ing here, that the princess and the handsome 41-year-old flier will not marry.

Queen Mother Elizabeth has told friends in the diplomatic corps the speculation is without foundation.

Princess Margaret was limping slightly when she attended services this morning at Crathie Church. She hurt her ankle when she fell yesterday after leaving a fair held to raise funds for a new vestry for the church.

The Princess drove to the church today with her mother. In another car were the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and their two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

ister of the church, said a prayer for the royal family and concluded by asking "especially on this day" for Princess Margaret: "May she always have God's guidance and with it find joy and peace."

There was no formal celebration. But members of the royal family and a few friends who have been staying with them at the castle held a small birthday party.

Even though Princess Margaret is now free to marry without her sister's consent, she must under the Royal Marriages Act give the Privy Council a year's notice of any contemplated marriage. If Parliament disapproved but she went ahead, her marriage would be considered null and she and her children would lose the right of succession. The princess is now third in line, behind Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Riots Spread To Tunisia; 1,000 Slain

French Planes,
Tanks In Battle

By CARL HARTMAN

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Monday, Aug. 22 (P)—The North African nationalist rebellion against French rule has spread into Tunisia after ravaging Morocco and Algeria and causing perhaps 1,000 deaths in weekend battles.

The French grimly waged the fight against the rebels through yesterday with all the modern weapons at their command, including planes and tanks.

Officially, 765 dead were counted, but experienced observers believed the death toll had grown to over 1,000 since the Saturday outbreak of massacres, riots, bombings and pitched battles.

CONFER ON PEACE

In hopes of restoring peace, French and Moroccan officials and leaders began arriving at the French resort of Aix les Bains on the Swiss border for consultations on ways of handing Morocco more self government.

The talks were setup before the outbreaks on the second anniversary of the dethronement of Morocco's nationalist Sultan, Mohammed Ben Youssef, whose return is being demanded.

The most serious outbreaks were in Algeria and Morocco Saturday, but a French outpost in Tunisia near the Algerian border was attacked Saturday night, it was learned today.

FIGHTING IN MOUNTAINS

Fighting continued today in the mountains of Morocco, where troops, tanks and planes pursued rebel bands of tribesmen.

The countryside around Marrakech was lit by numerous incendiary fires last night and four more deaths were reported there.

Rumors of fresh trouble from Meknes, in the north of Morocco, to Beni Belane, in the south, were current.

The worst of the incidents was at Oued Zem, about 100 miles southeast of Casablanca — where 4,000 Berber hillmen attacked Europeans in an hours-long blood bath. Men, women and children were shot, slashed and their bodies burned.

SCENE OF HORROR

Smoldering Oued Zem was described as a scene of horror, with mutilated bodies lying about. The outbreak caught civilians there by surprise, for the tribesmen had been considered friendly.

The French Foreign Legion thereupon began taking bloody revenge.

The American air bases in Morocco were apparently untouched by the weekend violence, and no Americans were reported harmed.

200 Dead Feared As Ebbbed Floods Reveal Grim Toll

Silt Yields Tragic Truth; Debris Worst in 20 Years

By The Associated Press

The Northeast's worst floods receded Sunday and left an awesome record of destruction, disorder and death.

The known dead climbed to 183 as rescue workers groped in silt-clogged homes and along riverbanks.

The toll appeared certain to go well over 200 before the grim count was ended.

Two states — Connecticut and Pennsylvania — each estimated as many as 60 persons still missing.

In terms of the men, women and children who were swept beneath the rushing waters to drown, it was the nation's worst flood in nearly 20 years.

Property damage was equally staggering in the eight seaboard states slashed by floods, the legacy of Hurricane Diane.

Not until Sunday, as brooks, streams and rivers sank back into their normal beds, was the full measure of havoc clear.

Estimates, or guesses, of the damage ran to well over a billion dollars.

Whole towns were left ravaged, cut off and demoralized.

Torrington, Conn., an industrial city of 28,000, had millions of dollars in damage.

Dozens of stores were crushed into matchwood. Bridges disappeared. Three persons were killed. The city had practically no communications with the outside world.

It was in a state of emergency. Aid stations were set up to feed and house the homeless.

A schoolyard became an emergency landing field for helicopters bringing in vital supplies.

"VALLEY IS DEAD"

All commercial life and normal living conditions in Putnam, Conn., came to a temporary end. Its factories were ruined — gutted by both raging floods and fire fed by exploding magnesium.

"We're done. This valley is dead," a veteran textile worker told an Associated Press reporter who managed to get into the beleaguered town.

Industrialized Connecticut apparently suffered the worst property damage.

Dozens of towns were operating on an emergency basis. Dry ice supplies were commandeered for vital refrigeration of food supplies.

A food and drug embargo was put into effect to stop contamination. Many places had no drinking water, no electricity, no gas, no telephones.

IKE KEEPS TOUCH

President Eisenhower, vacationing in Colorado, kept in close touch with the rescue work. He was "highly gratified" over the role of the armed services.

Connecticut workers faced another enormous monetary loss — the loss of at least 50,000 jobs caused by the destruction of factories. Many of these factories may never again return to normal operations.

Pennsylvania led in the loss of human life.

This was the latest count of known dead: Pennsylvania 93; Connecticut 63; Massachusetts 13; Virginia 3; New Jersey 6; New York 4; Rhode Island 1.

State police said the toll in Pennsylvania might eventually reach 150.

In the greatest single mass tragedy of the flood, the wiping out of

Red Korea To Return Hurt Flier, Pal's Body

SEOUL, Monday, Aug. 22 (P)—The Communists will return tomorrow a seriously injured U.S. flier and the body of an Army captain whose plane was shot down by the Reds near the neutral zone last week.

Lt. Guy H. Bumpas, Jackson, Miss., suffered a cracked skull, the Communists said. The Reds told a Military Armistice Commission meeting yesterday Capt. Charles W. Brown, Louisville, Ky., was killed.

The Communists readily admitted shooting down the plane. During an angry session of the commission, they insisted it was over North Korea to spy on military installations.

An informed source said that Brown, an observer on the small, unarmed trainer plane, actually was checking South Korean military positions for any sign of a buildup. South Korea has been threatening to seize Red territory northwest of Seoul.

Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, senior Allied delegate on the commission, followed up a written protest with a face-to-face denunciation of the Communists.

"This brutal and inhumane act of your side," he said, "in which you have again displayed your contemptible disregard for the value of human life will only serve to shock the free world into a more realistic appraisal of your sinister motives."

"It completely belies and pulls the shrouds from your spoken propaganda of peaceful intentions, good will and genuine desire to relax the tensions in this part of the world."

Parks charged that Brown was "murdered by a gang of trigger-happy gunners who profess to be

Georgia Road Deaths Climb to 14; 3 Die in Cumming Headon Crash

Two Atlantans were among 14 persons killed in weekend traffic accidents, the State Patrol reported: Three persons were killed in a headon collision near Cumming and three others died when a car hit a tree at Forsyth.

Atlanta Ptl. M. D. Kennedy and J. J. Galvin said Richard A. Newman, 2266 Carey Dr., SE, died early Sunday of injuries received late Saturday afternoon when his bicycle collided with an automobile on Carey drive, SE.

The patrolmen quoted witnesses as saying the youth ran a stop sign and collided with a car driven by Ralph C. Miller, 29, of 2221 Carey Dr., SE. No case was made against Miller, police said.

Twelve other persons were killed in Saturday highway wrecks in Georgia.

Winston Paul Johnson, 61, of 960 Allene Ave., SW, Atlanta, was killed Sunday night when a vehicle he was driving ran off the Gordon Road near U.S. 78 in Cobb County, the State patrol said.

Three persons were killed Sunday afternoon—in a headon collision 10 miles north of Cumming on a county road.

State patrolmen identified the victims as Earnest Lee, Mrs. Earnest Lee, RFD Dawsonville, and Garfield Lee, Rte. 5, Gainesville. Three other persons were injured in the crash.

A wreck claimed three lives when a car hit a tree at Forsyth.

Monroe County Sheriff Ray Grant identified those killed near Forsyth as David Walker, 24, Charlie H. Womble, 25, and W. G. Womble, 47, all of Forsyth, Sheriff Grant said the car driven by Walker was weaving about the road and when he attempted to stop it the car sped up. He said the auto failed to round a curve south of Forsyth and smashed into a tree.

Sgt. Stiner Hughes, 30, of Albany was killed and another person was injured Saturday at 1:14 a.m. two miles south of Acree in Dougherty County.

James Norris Knight, 31, of Cave Springs, was struck by a car while he was repairing a flat tire two miles west of Cave Springs in Floyd County.

Walter Hudson of Macon was killed when his auto left the road on a curve, broke a utility pole and hit a tree near Macon, the State Patrol said.

Atom Secrets Take Heavy Toll in Time

Peace Use Delegates Agree Hiding Data a Setback to All

By FRANK CAREY

GENEVA, Aug. 21 (AP)—Too much official secrecy probably cost valuable time in developing peaceful uses for atomic energy.

That was the ironic lesson which delegates to the just-concluded atoms-for-peace conference took back to their respective countries today. The conference, attended by leading atomic scientists from 72 nations, adjourned yesterday after a history-making two-week session. Representatives from both sides of the Iron Curtain disclosed for the first time many important discoveries.

The lesson that early secrecy by the major atomic powers undoubtedly led to time-wasting duplication of effort in all countries engaging in research may have a beneficial effect in the end. It may lead to an accelerated exchange of information on the "peaceful" atom.

This was the studied view of some experts at the conference, where subjects ranged from giant atom-smashing machines, capable of generating up to 10 billion electron volts, to the experimental value of tiny bacteria locked in the snows atop towering Mt. Blanc.

"We and other countries have lifted our peaceful atomic curtain," said one prominent American scientific delegate, "and we find that many countries have done about the same thing."

SECRECY GAINS LITTLE

"This would seem to make secrecy of one country less important and drives home the lesson that a country is apt to gain little by secrecy—and might even impede its own development in the atomic line."

He emphasized that he was speaking only of nonmilitary aspects of atomic energy.

There was little doubt that the lid had been lifted considerably on peaceful uses of the atom. The United States tipped its hand particularly in the field of reactors designed to speed the advent of economical industrial power from the atom.

Russia also gave considerable information on a small reactor which all other delegations admitted is actually the first to produce power on an exclusive commercial basis, even though the power is not generally competitive with conventional power.

SOVIETS SHARE DATA

While Russia ducked details on its forthcoming first large-scale power reactor, Soviet scientists joined those of all the leading atomic powers in exchanging technical information described as important.

Conference observers took the view that power production from atomic energy is more urgent for Russia and Britain, which have shortages of conventional power, than for the United States with plenty of regular fuels.

Looking back over the conference, here are some of the main disclosures:

1. Experimental reactors have "bred" twice as much new fuel as was consumed in keeping the devices going. This contribution, mainly British, may greatly stretch potential supplies of atomic fuel.

H-BOMB HARNESSING

2. Many scientists hope eventually to harness for peaceful uses power from the fusion-type reaction of an H-bomb as well as from the fission-type of the A-bomb.

3. New uses are being developed for radioactive isotopes, ranging from safer "applicators" for treating certain eye diseases to possible use of tritium, an H-bomb ingredient, for laundering greasy clothes.

4. No magic formula has been discovered to protect workers from atomic radiation, but promising work is under way.

5. The delegates agreed excessive atomic radiation could have serious effects on hereditary factors among humans and animals. No one was able to define the danger level, and some experts insisted a "well-managed" atomic industry would not be hazardous.

U.S. Frees Atom Data To Industry

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP)—The U.S. government today released nearly a thousand hitherto secret or restricted reports on atomic energy research which can be put to peaceful uses. It promised more in the future.

The action was announced by Secretary of Commerce Weeks, whose department is cooperating with the Atomic Energy Commission in the new share-the-atoms-with-industry program.

MORE FOR INDUSTRY

"The release of this information to American industry complements President Eisenhower's 'atoms for peace' program on the home front," Weeks said.

He added that it "marks the beginning of a wider participation of industry in atomic research and development."

As a first step in keeping American business posted on latest developments in industrial applications of the new energy, the Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services made 961 AEC research reports immediately available.

These are in addition, the Commerce Department said, to information made public by this country at the International Atomic Conference which ended yesterday in Geneva.

MOST UNPUBLISHED

Weeks said about one-third of the reports made public today have had "limited circulation" in the past but the others have not been published at all.

He said the reports cover many fields, including chemistry, geology, metallurgy, mineralogy, ceramics, instrumentation, physics and reactor technology.

The reports released today were included in a "list of AEC research reports for sale." The list may be obtained free from the OTS. Reports to be released in the future will be outlined in the monthly OTS publication, U.S. Government Research Reports, available at $6 a year from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.

Homing From Russia, Americans Urge Visits in Non-Farm Fields

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (AP)—An American farm group returning from a tour of the Soviet Union today urged similar exchange visits, in other fields to break down suspicion and encourage good will in the interest of peace.

Eleven farmers, educators and newsmen flew here from Moscow this afternoon after a month-long tour at Russia. The leader, Dean W. V. Lambert of the University of Nebraska agricultural school, told correspondents:

"I'm sure we made some friends in Russia and the tension we first felt when we went there did not exist when we left. Similar exchanges would be desirable to break down the barriers. These people are tremendously isolated and anything we can do in this direction would be helpful. They have the most to gain by exchange now but later we might gain considerably."

The American group plans to leave here tomorrow for New York.

Could Halt Riots, ROK Envoy Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP)—South Korea's Ambassador, Dr. You Chan Yang, said today his government has no desire to halt the demonstrations urging Communist truce teams to get out of his country.

"Our government can control the demonstrations if we really want to," Yang said, "but we don't want to. The people in a democratic country have a right to demonstrate against spies."

Interviewed on a TV-radio show, the Korean ambassador said the violent demonstrations of recent days were not instigated by President Syngman Rhee. He said they were "an Oriental way of displaying our feelings against certain things which have been broiling in our hearts."

Yang said his people lost their patience because "nobody seemed to be doing anything" to get the Czechs and Poles on the truce inspection teams out of South Korea.

The Korean ambassador said because of the Communists' activity "we are like sitting ducks" while the Czechs and Poles are photographing and obtaining a complete picture of all defense installations in South Korea. Meanwhile, he said, the Communists in North Korea have busily built airfields, brought in hundreds of planes, trainloads and truckloads of heavy artillery and built up their ground forces to 1,200,000 men.

Washington Rides Again As 51-Day Strike Ends

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP)—City buses and streetcars will roll in Washington tomorrow for the first time since July 1.

The 51-day-old transit strike was settled today at 1:12 a.m. with agreement on a fare increase to offset the 15 cents hourly wage boost won by the 2,400 striking AFL transit union workers.

The Capital Transit Co. took today to check over its buses, notify the workers and send maintenance cars up and down the street car tracks, clearing the rails.

The settlement was reached under a bill passed by Congress cancelling the transit company's franchise after one year and giving the district commissioners power to negotiate a wage agreement between the company and the union. President Eisenhower signed the bill last Sunday.

The commissioners, who administer affairs of the nation's capital under direction of Congress, are authorized to arrange for service from another company if necessary after a year.

Louis E. Wolfson, Florida financier and chairman of the board of Capital Transit Co., has offered the company for sale for $14,400,000, or $15 a share. He bought control at $5 a share six years ago.

Congress authorized an arrangement for the federal government to make up any company losses because of the wage increases during the next 12 months. But the Capital Transit Co. declined to sign such a contract, saying it would go ahead on its own.

The fare increases boost token rates from 16 to 19 cents but cash fares remain at 20 cents. The charge for weekly permits, allowing holders unlimited rides at 10 cents each, was increased from 75 to 90 cents.

The wage increase accepted Friday night by union drivers and mechanics is estimated to cost $1,200,000. The workers originally asked a 25 cents hourly boost. Their former scale was $1.90 an hour for drivers and $2.03 for top mechanics.

British Magnify Strike Damage, Singapore Says

SINGAPORE, Aug. 21 (AP)—David Marshall, chief minister in Singapore's new Labor government, today blamed British businessmen for "grossly exaggerated" reports about damage to the island's economy by recent strikes.

"The damage, if any, is insignificant," he declared.

"The economy is as sound as ever—I would say sounder than ever—as we lay the foundation of a welfare state impervious to communism."

Four persons, including an American news correspondent, Gene Symonds of Dayton, Ohio, were killed during rioting that accompanied a bus strike here last May 4. A wave of other strikes in June idled thousands of workers.

Trout Outing Leaves Ike Ruddy, Rested

DENVER, Aug. 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower, ruddy with sunburn and looking well rested, returned to the summer White House tonight after five days of trout fishing and general relaxation at a Rocky Mountain ranch.

The President arrived at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud, at 6 p.m. MST. The 70-mile drive from Fraser took two hours and 15 minutes through heavy Sunday traffic.

Eisenhower was accompanied by his friend Aksel Nielsen, who was host at the ranch at Fraser, Colo., and his 7-year-old grandson, David.

Young David vacationed with the President in the Rockies.

Pops' Hunt For Talent Paying Off

By PAUL JONES

Albert Coleman, whose varied talents include a hotel position and conducting the concert orchestra, has definitely shown a new talent this year. He is a talent scout with a keen eye and ear.

The three soloists he chose for the final concert at the Fox Theater Sunday (there is still another Pops Concert scheduled at Chastain Park Friday night) were among the best of the season, and that is quite a compliment since all the soloists have been excellent.

Photogenically Miss Pat Melton of Burlington, N. C., was also one of the prettiest guests Coleman has had.

Miss Melton, a mezzo-soprano, sang the "Habanera" from "Carmen" as her piquant selection. Her appearance was reminiscent of Rise Stevens' appearance here at the Fox in that opera. The upper register of her voice was very good, and her low notes had a lot of the quality of the glamorous Met soprano.

John A. Wiles Jr., a Third Army GI, emerged as the season's foremost soloist. He did the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen," and likewise Atlantans' thoughts turned back to memories of the Met. Wiles has a great voice, production, timing and showmanship.

Roy J. Beard of Colquitt, pianist, interpreted the first movement of Grieg's Piano Concerto with flawless musicianship. The young Beard has a bright future.

The orchestra featured Saint-Saens "Bucchanal" from "Samson and Delilah," the Romeo and Juliet Overture, "April in Paris" and Jackie Gleason's "Lovers Rhapsody."

The Coca-Cola Co. will sponsor the final pops of the season at the outdoor theater Friday starting at 8:30 p.m. The orchestra and chorus then will feature Manhattan Tower.

The Governor Has An Excellent Plan

The establishment of mental clinics in urban centers is being considered by Gov. Marvin Griffin as a means of relieving the strain on the facilities of Milledgeville State Hospital.

The governor has called a conference with leaders in health and welfare fields in order to discuss this and other methods of improving Georgia's treatment of the mentally ill.

The State Hospital at Milledgeville had a patient population over the weekend of approximately 11,800, a figure that makes it the second largest institution of its kind in the world.

Because of the enormous number of patients, and the shortage of psychiatrists and trained technical assistants in this specialized field, the hospital is forced to operate more as a custodial institution than as a place that can concentrate on cures.

The hospital also is penalized by having drunks and unwanted old people committed to its care through lack of proper screening centers and by an out-moded commitment procedure.

The governor's plan for clinics away from Milledgeville recognizes the fact that mental, like physical illness, can be cured, particularly if treatment begins in the early stages. These clinics will cut the number of admissions to the central hospital by curing many before it becomes necessary to commit them and by screening the psychotic from the alcoholic and the old.

Gov. Griffin is showing a sincere and sustained interest in the problem of the mentally ill. He has announced that a training program for psychiatrists and technical personnel will be instituted at the Eugene Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta and said that he will try to find funds to remodel the Powell Building at Milledgeville, the last remaining non-fireproof structure at the hospital.

If the governor is able to carry out the details of this program, it will be one of the solidest accomplishments of his administration. It will cost money, but in the long run will prove economical, for it is cheaper to cure mental patients than to support them as public charges for their lifetimes.

Middle American Lands Build an Organization

The foreign ministers of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala are in session to resuscitate the Organization of Central American States.

This group, whose object is to bring about closer communion between the sister republics of Middle America, is an organization on paper only. It was founded four years ago, but due to Guatemala's troubles with the Communists, it never got off the ground.

Now Guatemala is quiet and stable again, and delegates of the Central American nations are assembled there. The meeting is being held in Antigua, a particularly appropriate place, since that charming colonial city was the seat of the Spanish viceroys who ruled all the territory comprising the five republics.

Closer union between these nations is no new idea. They were together under Spanish rule, and for a brief period after declaring their independence operated as a confederation of states. Poor communications and political jealousies ended this, but the idea never has died.

The republics of Central America have much in common culturally and economically. Improved communications, including the advancing Pan-American highway, are bringing them closer together. These beautiful lands have their troubles, both internal and external, as last year's Communist coup in Guatemala so forcibly reminded the rest of the world.

An Organization of Central American States, perhaps with permanent headquarters in Antigua, could be a real force in helping solve the mutual problems of the lands of Middle America.

V-J Anniversary Finds Asia Far From Peace

So engrossed are we in still trying to settle the problems left in its wake that the anniversary of the ending of the war with Japan passed with little fanfare. The day was Sunday, Aug. 14, and it came at a time when a solution to the problems of Asia and aggressive Chinese communism seems as far away as ever.

The ending of the Japanese war did not end the fighting in Asia. It did not bring peace to China. The Soviet Union's entry into the conflict six days before Japan's surrender laid the foundation for Communist conquest of the mainland of China and unleashed a web of subversion and aggression that now threatens all of Asia, including Japan.

Even while preliminary peace negotiations are going on at Geneva, the Chinese Reds are stepping up their activities in Asia. Even while they propose a Far East conference on Asian problems, Communists are on the move in Indonesia, Laos and Singapore. The war in Malaya is still going on and the attempt to turn Singapore into a satellite is succeeding.

From Singapore the Reds will have a base for further infiltration of Indonesia and make almost certain their conquest of Thailand, Cambodia and all of Vietnam. It would mean Communist domination of the vast resources of Southeast Asia and control of markets that would certainly bring Japan sooner or later into the Communist sphere.

The Formosa problem has not been settled and the Reds' price is U.S. withdrawal, recognition of the Red Chinese government, United Nations membership and liquidation of Chiang Kai-shek.

Now, 10 years after the armistice with Japan, Asia's problems seem greater than ever. While the tiger may have stopped growling and snapping temporarily, he hasn't changed his stripes. His aim is Communist domination of all of Asia.

Georgia Tech Alumni Can Do a Great Job

The Georgia Tech Alumni Society and the Georgia Tech Foundation have voted to undertake a similar program for alumni support as that which the university alumni and foundation began a short time ago. The aim is to enlist every alumnus of each of the two schools in building a foundation to supplement the always-too-little funds from the state.

Although the two foundations are separately established and separately managed, both are dedicated to supporting higher education in Georgia. These two institutions, offering training in different fields, largely form the base for the state's industrial, economic and social progress. From them must come Georgia's future leadership and that leadership is in greater demand today than ever before.

The program, outlined by Society President Herman Talmadge at a series of meetings with alumni over the state, is ambitious. It calls for participation of every man and woman wherever they are in building up the university and its supporting foundation. Georgia Tech will undertake a similar drive for help.

Although separate, the two groups will work together on some phases of the program. They will seek joint support from business firms and corporations—those who stand to profit as much as any individuals from having two strong state institutions providing the trained work force they need.

We congratulate Georgia Tech on its decision to join in the program. We hope its alumni all over the state and nation will cooperate fully and that the two efforts prove completely successful.

Theater Under-the-Stars Deserves Public Support

The Municipal Theater Under-the-Stars has closed a splendid season. The productions were outstanding and about 100,000 people enjoyed them. In spite of that, the theater wound up the season with a considerable deficit because of the unseasonable weather that kept many people away.

Obviously the future of the theater rests with the people of Atlanta. If it is to be continued next year, it must have guarantors who will be willing to help make up the losses—if any. The more who join in supporting this worthy project the greater will be its success and the less the risk for individual guarantors.

The theater is a nonprofit organization but it must make ends meet. Guarantors are urged to mail contributions to the Municipal Theater Inc., Georgian Terrace Hotel, Atlanta.

In addition, a "sinking fund" has been started to bring in $10 contributions. Donors to this will receive tickets to a special premiere performance of next year's opening show.

The theater is a worthy community project that brings top talent from Broadway to Atlanta. In addition it affords an avenue for developing our own local performers. Everyone is urged to join in its support to insure another fine theater season next summer.

Texas, of whom there are hundreds in the government, are not amused by the latest Texas story going the rounds in Washington. As the story goes, a Texan, visiting in Chicago, put in a long distance call and asked the operator to report the charges.

"Your call, sir," the operator reported, "was $3.45."

"What!" exclaimed the outraged Texan. "Why in Texas, I could call the devil for $3.45."

"You must be mistaken sir," the operator purred. "In Texas a call to the devil is a local call."

'Blood Stream of Free Government Involved In Current School Question's Legal Aspects'

ATLANTA—It seems to me that the status quo on the race issue are trying to operate from a base that is rather tenuous if it exists at all, namely: that segregation has settled the race problem in the South.

The growing clamor for pride and dignity proves the opposite—that segregation was and is an evasion of citizen's rights on account of color. That has been settled now—at the summit.

The taxing and spending and services to all citizens are involved in the legal aspects of school segregation. The blood stream of free government is involved.

Segregation in schools is only one of the intravascular coagulations which may prove to be fatal to some of the South's vital institutions. Fear of freedom, after all, seems to be a rather canted view of the American spirit.

'Let Majority Rule And Cease Bickering'

Atlanta—The battle of the words: You see politicians and newspapers do it at election time. But the big "X" on the ballot wins. I don't believe that the Supreme Court and the NAACP should tell the white people what to do or how to live or the white people should tell the NAACP what to do or how to live.

I say let's ballot on it and then live by "majority rules." All of this bickering back and forth is just going to stir up racial trouble.

Supreme Court Edict Not Always Final

If a Supreme Court decision is final, what happened to the earlier "final" decision of the court which was overturned by this latest "final" decision?

Not one word of the 14th amendment was changed, but a new bunch of judges didn't like what a previous bunch of the same had done about it.

Si, Senor, Here Are the Goods

Daniel Ruzo, the Peruvian who came to the United States to study poultry processing, was by the other day to report on his travels in this country. Daniel says he found everything he was looking for here except long-term credit.

It seems an American loan is so discounted that the South American developer starts out with two strikes. German credit comes easier south of the border.

The illustrative example down there goes like this: If a senator in the Southern Hemisphere writes to an English firm concerning some product he wants to buy, the English people send a letter by ship's mail inquiring about the nature of the business.

If he writes to France, he gets no answer. When he addresses his request to the U.S.A., he receives by return mail a catalog and prices plus instructions to send cash or a letter of credit. But when he addresses the Germans, two salesmen show up at his business the next day hearing the merchandise and credit for five or six years at four to five per cent.

A Successful Life Is Based on Love

"For God so loved"—that is the greatest statement in the Bible. It is the revelation of the character of God, the explanation of the laws that control the world in which we live, and the foundation upon which every successful life must be built.

No wonder the Bible warns us that even though one might have marvelous gifts and graces, talents and wealth, if that person does not have love he is nothing. And, even though one might do many wonderful things and even give his life in service, there is no profit in such a life, unless that person possesses love. (1 Corinthians 13:1-3) Love, and love alone, determines any person's worth and any person's success in this business of living. Love is the most important thing in life.

You may have an educated mind, give your talents in many worthwhile services, rise to places of prominence in the eyes of other people, live an honorable and decent life, but even after you have done all these things, if you have left love out of your life, you are a useless person and life for you is a failure. The absence of love is the explanation of the unhappiness and restlessness of vast multitudes of people today. Love is the one quality of character—and only one—about which we can say, "If a person has this, his life is good—without this, no matter what else he may have or do, life is bad."

What is love? That word has been used to describe so many things that we have become confused as to its real meaning. The Greeks had a word "eros" which we have translated as love. With in the meaning of that word is the act of possessing. It really isn't love, rather it is a perversion of love.

For example, a young man falls in love with a girl. He then wants her entirely for himself. He thinks in terms of making her his. At first he wants to "go steady." That means she must not go with another boy. He wants to hold her close to himself. He wants to make her his wife. For him that is not love, it is possessing.

Read again Shakespeare's Othello. He loved his wife Desdemona simply because of what she meant to him. And when he decided she was unfaithful to him, he killed her. So often, when some person does not respond to our love, that love is changed into hatred and, instead of love, we seek or wish for that person some hurt or destruction.

Herein lies the explanation of many divorces today. One takes the other, not because of real love, but because of what he or she can mean to him or her. Since the love is focused inward, when the partner ceases to fulfill the needs or desires of the other, he or she is cast aside. That isn't love at all. Tomorrow we must look further at this.

The Geneva Papers Contain No Secrets

WASHINGTON—The preference of the President is to make public shortly the record of what each head of state said on every matter of importance during the week-long meeting of the Big Four.

His instinct and his objective are to keep the American people factually informed except where security forbids.

His own judgment is that it is those who want to keep diplomatic secrets who should justify their position, not those who want to give the facts to the public.

While Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles see an important point of principle involved here, there are really no important secrets involved.

The Geneva documents proposed for publication would actually reveal no new fact of consequence, according to my information. The reason is that transcripts of four major segments of the President's remarks at the conference table were released to the press at the time and after the close of each day's session the press was briefed, either publicly or privately, on the other parts of Mr. Eisenhower's participation.

What will be released—and this I think will be the only thing that is at all new in the record—will be a detailed account of President Eisenhower's actual words during his major participation in the discussion. An account of Secretary Dulles' participation will also probably be included.

However, if the other powers decline to release their sides of the talks, this will cause some gaps in the American record. Obviously there would be parts of the President's remarks which would not

U.N. Anti-Aggression Record Called Impressive by Lodge

In the Christian Science Monitor UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—United States Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., has posed—and answered—19 key questions about the United Nations in a new booklet entitled "You . . . and the United Nations."

The questions are those which have been asked of Mr. Lodge most frequently by the general public during the two and one-half years he has represented the United States here.

"Mr. Lodge, how effective has the United Nations been in deterring or stopping aggression?" the first question reads.

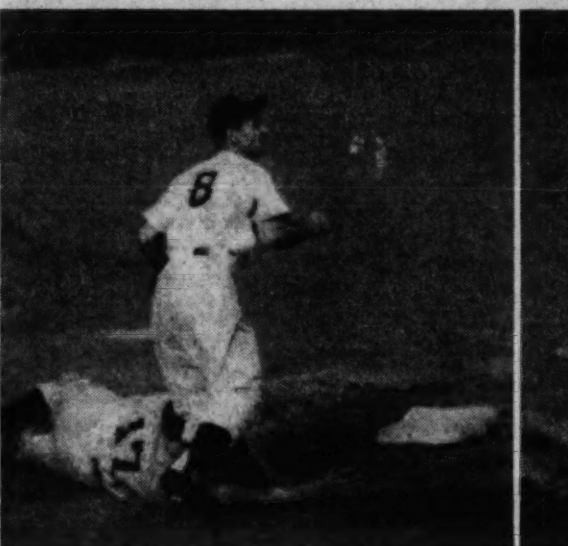

The chief American delegate, in reply, points to the U.N.'s "impressive record" in helping check communism in Iran (1946) and Greece (1947-48); in "preventing the outbreak of war over Kashmir"; in "mediating the conflict which led to an independent Indonesia"; and in "preventing the war between Israel and the Arab countries from expanding into a far greater war."

Mr. Lodge also points to the "material, moral and manpower support" which the United States gained from the U.N. in resisting Communist aggression in Korea. Had the North Korean attack not been resisted, he says, "we might have had a third world war—or an uncontrollable spread of communism on a world scale."

"The United Nations participation in the Korean action was far from perfect," Mr. Lodge declares, "but it was the first collective defense of its kind in history. The Wright Brothers didn't smash their first airplane because it only flew for a few seconds. They went on to improve it."

sented a "usurpation of congressional responsibilities and functions" and a deliberate effort to "reverse power policy in the Tennessee Valley."

"Misuse of independent agencies, suppression, concealment, half-truths, and misrepresentation have followed as chain consequences, each misstep leading to the next," their report asserted.

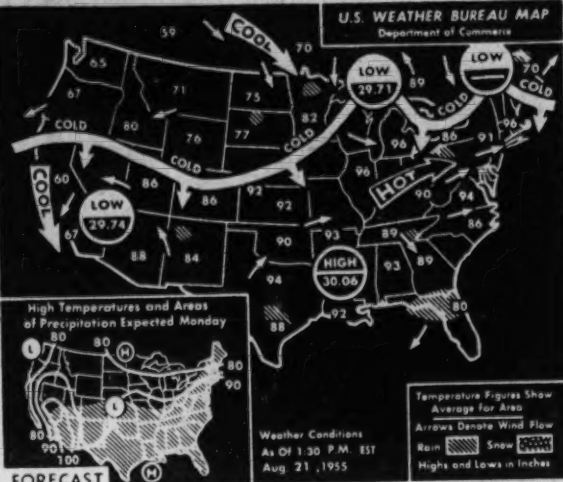

As the most "startling" case of concealment, the report cited the role in the controversy of Adolph H. Wenzell, the former investment banker. The report said the question of a "possible violation of the conflict of interest statutes" was raised by Wenzell's activities.

Testimony before the senators showed that Wenzell, while a vice president and director of the First Boston Corp., had served as an unpaid Bureau of the Budget consultant on power policy and had taken part in conferences involving the Dixon-Yates project.

About a month after he left the government, First Boston, a New York investment banking firm, emerged as financial agent for the project, but declined its customary fee.

Since his retirement from First Boston in June, 1954, Wenzell has been with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

"The First Boston Corp.," the report said, "stood to profit in many ways from the activities of Wenzell in the Bureau of the Budget."

Floods Ebb; Dead May Reach 200

Camp Davis in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, the number of known dead mounted to 31, almost all women and children. Nine Davis campers are known to have survived.

The Northeast, hit first by a drought in July and then by two hurricanes and 20 inches or more of rain in some areas during August, now sweltered in a heat wave.

President Eisenhower Saturday designated six states as major disaster areas as a result of Hurricane Diane, entitling them to federal assistance in repairing damage.

They are Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Rhode Island, hit by the floods Thursday and Friday, and South Carolina, hit by the storm's initial onslaught against the coast. New York and Virginia felt the storm's impact to a lesser degree.

FOOD, WATER SCARCE
The providing of pure food and water were major problems in some of the stricken areas. Precautions were being taken to guard against disease.

Train and automobile travel still was tangled. Police and other officials implored weekend motorists to avoid sightseeing or other needless trips in the vicinity of flood-stricken areas.

Actually, roads into such areas usually were blocked by police to all vehicles except those on flood duty.

The Automobile Club of New York said it now was possible to travel by automobile between New York and Boston, via Rt. 1, with some detours.

It said through travel via the inland Wilbur Cross Parkway route still was blocked near the Massachusetts-Connecticut border.

Automobiles can travel between New York and Philadelphia via the New Jersey Turnpike.

OTHER CHILDREN SAFE
In Connecticut, Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff called a special session of the legislature to deal with appropriations for what he called "absolutely heartbreaking" devastation.

At least 30,000 persons were out of work in Connecticut because of factories knocked out by the floods. In Pennsylvania, Navy helicopter pilots searched for—and found—bodies in the Pocono Mountains Camp Davis area, focal point of the greatest mass tragedy of the floods.

Bodies of 31 persons, almost all women and children who had been happily spending the summer at the camp, have been recovered. The camp cottages were wiped out almost in a flash by a wall of water from an ordinarily placid Broadhead Creek. The water reportedly rose 25 to 30 feet within 15 minutes, smashing the buildings and sweeping their tangled timbers and the campers downstream.

In Washington, the Red Cross reassured anxious parents by declaring it had unofficial word that all children in 36 other Pocono camps were safe.

Death Toll 1,000 As French Fight African Rioters

Americans had been warned to stay at home and out of sight.

Constantine, Algeria, was calm under tight police and military control. But a massive roundup was in progress, and about 600 persons were put under heavy guard. They included many rebels captured in the fighting.

Eyewitnesses of the massacre described the scene at Oued Zem as one of unimaginable horror; women and children were mutilated and burned.

Rebels in Oued Zem and tribesmen from the nearby mountains killed at least 50 French residents, by official count. Other reports put the figure at 80.

Dead in a wreck near Spring Place were Festel Gordon, 24, Ramhurst, and Vernon DeFoor, 24, of Resaca. The State Patrol said the car in which they were riding crashed through a bridge and landed upside down in Holly Creek.

Atlantan Tells S.C. Rally Of New Klan For Whites

CONWAY, S.C., Aug. 21 (AP)—The new imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan says he wants to make his organization "strong and vicious enough to fight the evils against the white man."

E. L. Edwards of Atlanta, Ga., robed and hooded, and speaking against the background of a blazing cross, addressed a crowd estimated at 1,500 last night in an open field about eight miles from Conway.

Edwards, who claims to be the imperial wizard of the new "U.S. Klan, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan," promised his organization "will remain within the law."

But, he shouted, "This is a white man's organization fighting for white supremacy."

The ex-serviceman was dressed in flowing gold robe trimmed in red. He was not masked.

Edwards said his organization was formed to "protect ourselves against the evils brought on by the NAACP (National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People), Knights of Columbus and the Anti-defamation League."

He said he had been told the KKK had been denied the right to organize in North Carolina. But he said, "Our organization will continue there because the state allows the NAACP and the Knights of Columbus to organize. How can they deny us?"

Edwards said he copyrighted his new organization in Washington in September, 1953. Since then, he said, "considerable" progress has been made in signing members in Georgia and Texas.

He said he would not ask the crowd in Conway to join the Klan "because Horry County already is organized."

Edwards mentioned segregation by saying "I am not a race discriminator, but I want to be in a segregated group. God made that decision 2,000 years ago."

Most of the crowd that heard him here were teen-age boys and girls and young men in their early 20s.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Girl's Father Belittled By Snobbish Mother

Opal T., 15, attends a private school in Chicago.

"But, Dr. Crane, I think it would be far better for her to go to a public high school," her uncle informed me.

"For my sister, who is her mother, is cultivating unnecessary snobbishness in Opal."

"My sister has taken a job to help earn additional money so she can dress Opal in ultra-fashionable clothes."

"And she wants Opal to go to college but just so she can marry some socialite whose father is a millionaire."

"Recently I heard her tell Opal: 'I certainly don't want you to marry anybody like your dad.'"

"And she meant to belittle his job, which is really a very good one with the telephone company, and pays him about $120 per week."

"Opal is now getting so snooty she will not date a boy unless he drives a Cadillac. And that isn't a good attitude for a teenage girl, do you think?"

Opal's later unhappiness in life will be directly traceable to her mother's snobbishness.

It was not only tactless to the nth degree, but entirely un-American to belittle Opal's father because he worked for the telephone company at $120 per week.

For that's big money in America! And the telephone company is just as important a concern

ANSWERS AN BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ A 4 3 ♥ K 10 5 ♦ K 10 9 8 5 2 ♣ Q

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 diamond Pass 1 heart Pass

2 hearts Pass 2 no trump Pass

3 diamonds Pass 4 diamonds Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four hearts. It is true that partner has marked himself with a four card heart suit, and we normally avoid contracting for game in a suit of which we have only seven trumps, but this hand should be treated exceptionally. Partner's trumps cannot readily be forced for the short suit in your hand. After diamonds are established, partner should be able to draw trumps. An eleven trick contract seems too remote.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ J 2 ♥ A J 5 ♦ J 10 6 3 ♣ K J 10 9

The bidding has proceeded:

North South West East

1 spade Pass 2 clubs Pass

2 spades Pass 2 no trump Pass

3 hearts Pass 7

What do you bid now?

A—Three spades. Your hand is not quite strong enough to persist with the no trump in face of partner's warning. Although your personal preference is for hearts, the best partnership trump holding is spades, for presumably partner has six spades and four hearts. Remember he rebid spades before showing hearts.

Q. 3—Partner opens fourth hand with a bid of one diamond, and you hold:

♠ K 5 ♥ Q J 4 ♦ K 10 7 6 4 2 ♣ K 5

What is your response?

A—Three no trumps. Any lesser bid may be passed by partner, who will bear in mind that you could not open the bidding. A bid of three diamonds would be poor strategy. If the hand is to be played at no trump, which is not unlikely, you should be declarer to protect your two kings against attack on the opening lead.

Q. 4—Partner opens with one heart, and you hold:

♠ K Q 9 8 ♥ A 9 3 ♦ 6 4 3 1 ♣ 7 5

What do you bid?

A—Two hearts. There is a distinct objection to responding with one spade. If partner happens to rebid two hearts you will then feel obliged to raise to three, which would be doing too much bidding on the values held. Where you are not strong enough to do both, the raise of partner's major suit should be made.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ Q 9 7 6 ♥ Q 6 4 3 ♠ A 7 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 heart Pass 1 no trump Pass

2 spades Pass 2

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts or with a conservative partner, four hearts. The important consideration is not to persist with no trumps because you have stoppers in the other suits. Partner is marked with at least five hearts and four spades and must be short in the other directions.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ K 10 7 5 ♥ 9 2 ♦ K 10 7 6 ♠ A 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 spade Pass 1 no trump Pass

Pass Pass 1 spade Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Game is hopeless, since you have only 15 points in high cards. Partner has a maximum point count of nine.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A K 6 4 ♥ A 7 5 ♦ A 10 7 2 ♠ 9 5

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 spade Pass 1 no trump Pass

Pass Pass 1 spade Pass

3 hearts Pass 1

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. You have already done your noble duty by the hand.

as is a bank. And a lot of doctors don't net $120 per week.

A great many snobbish mothers, however, try to impose an artificial caste system in America.

They spend every cent they have and then mortgage their future to make it look as if their children are heiresses and aristocrats.

But they have the mistaken notion that aristocrats are measured by brands of cars and mink coats, which is not true.

Real aristocracy is one of merit, based on brains and ability to earn one's way in the present economic set-up.

It definitely does not make a girl a patrician to dress her in furs and silks, and teach her an affected accent.

To show the ludicrous nature of this universal attempt by scheming mothers, suppose they also tried to create the illusion that their daughter was brilliant by having her carry ponderous tomes, wear horn-rimmed glasses and affect disdain for newspaper comics.

Such artifices would not give the girl a higher IQ. They would simply be camouflage.

And all the wealthy adornments that designing mothers place around their daughters are purely a veneer.

Any smart young man can see through them in a few moments of conversation with the girl.

Boys prefer naturalness in women. That means a gay, smiling face and an eager enthusiasm for life.

It involves an interest in outdoor events and sports, but likewise a tenderness and sympathy for underdogs, whether they be kittens or kiddies.

A girl with charm can wear a $25 outfit and run circles around Opal or other artificial girls who press too hard to affect the heiress role.

And a boy who earns his own money, who pays his own bills, and who escorts his girl to parties in his own jalopy, is far superior to the playboy son of a wealthy dad, whose father's money pays for sonny boy's courting.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE VAN DELLEN

An Adolescent Tests Maturity of Parents

Don't be too hard on your adolescent son or daughter. John is neither boy nor man; he wants to be mature but is staggered by the thought of adult responsibilities. Most of these young people are growing up but prefer to emancipate themselves by degrees.

Teen-agers may want their parents to enforce limitations so that each new experience and responsibility can be absorbed and digested. But do not expect John or Mary to admit this to their parents.

One of the best examples of this phase of adolescence was described by Dr. C. Knight Aldrich in his book, "Psychiatry for the Family Physician."

Dr. Aldrich relates the following incident: "A high school girl at a party telephoned her mother for permission to accompany her friends on an excursion after the party. The hour would be late, the distance considerable, and the destination not familiar. The mother detected a note of real anxiety in her daughter's voice as she asked: 'I suppose you won't let me go, will you, Mother?'

"The mother said she thought it might be wiser for the daughter to come right home after the party. The response came back, in a voice resonant with confidence and loud enough to proclaim to the party the martyrdom its owner suffered: 'O, Mother, you're so old-fashioned! You never let me do anything that's fun!'

This girl wanted a negative answer even though she gave her friends the impression her mother was domineering.

If her mother had answered, "Go, if you want to," our teenager "would have had to choose between attending a party for which she felt uneasy and ap-

When Dad meets the situation. Like a mature man it is likely to rekindle John's feeling of security in his home. If Father reacts by feeling hurt or rebellious, the boy will give up his shenanigans temporarily, particularly when he is not ready to be pushed out of the nest.

As a result, there is no need to be too concerned when John is dissatisfied with the manners and customs of his parents.

The struggle for emancipation may take the form of idealism, in which a bold bid for freedom is made by breaking away from the religious and political standards of the family. This may explain why many youngsters often regard socialism or communism as Utopias. Young sprouts can be sold on anything that does away with parents. "The old-fashioned exploiters of youth."

Several thousand people are expected to begin registering at Rock Eagle Park State 4-H Club Center north of here Monday for Georgia's first annual farm festival.

The event will feature, in addition to speeches by leading agriculturists, swimming, movies and games for farm children, cooking schools, style reviews and displays of home equipment for the women and irrigation demonstrations, farm machinery exhibits and new farming techniques for the men.

Scheduled to last through Friday the festival is expected to offer many of the farm people attending their first inexpensive week-long vacation.

Speakers for the special event will include Commissioner of Agriculture Phil Campbell on Tuesday, former Gov. Herman Talmadge on Wednesday and H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation on Thursday.

Vespers services will be held each evening in the chapel. Seven major distributors will display irrigation equipment during the festival.

scheduled soon for Atlanta moviegoers.

Meanwhile, the lissome Miss Clooney took time out to "talk shop" with a photographer. She reached into her purse for a snapshot case.

"That's Miguel Jose," she beamed, pointing out the six-month-old bottle holder who had stayed back home in Beverly Hills.

The Maysville, Ky., native who said "I do" to her famous husband in July, 1953, inquired about Atlanta's weather. She said it was "almost unbearable" when she was here six years ago, in a singing engagement with Tony Pastor's Orchestra. That was before her record-making days. She was here again, about two years ago, during the showing of her first movie, "The Stars Are Singing," in which she starred.

Since then, her two "houses" and such hits as "Half As Much" have continued to sell rapidly and there have been other movies, such as "White Christmas" with Bing Crosby, and more to come.

She has recorded an album of hymns with ten-year old sister, Gail Stone, and revealed that sister Betty Clooney is considering matrimony.

Miss Clooney said she claimed singing as her "first love."

However, the blue-eyed singing star, quickly retrieving the snapshot case, would have had a tough time convincing anyone of that fact Sunday afternoon.

Crack Company of Navy Trainees Returns Here to Heroes' Welcome

By WARREN BOSWORTH

Georgia's crack "Cherokee Company" returned home from boot camp Sunday to a hero's welcome. Dozens of parents, relatives and girl friends from over the state were on hand to greet the young sailors as they arrived by bus from San Diego Navy Base.

And eight weeks of extensive Navy training had made quite a few changes in the gang that had departed from here June 16. They walked a little different in those bell-bottomed trousers and they spoke with the salty lingo of Barnacle Bill.

Under the leadership of Chief Petty Officer Leland Redfern of Thomasville, the exclusive all-Georgia company made the most of boot camp, chalking up the highest all-over percentage score ever recorded at the San Diego base under present grading methods.

The Cherokee Company won seven out of eight weeks' efficiency awards, two sports competition awards, and were selected as an "outstanding company."

And to top this all off, they won the coveted Brigade Award, lopping one week off basic training.

Lt. Com. Lawrence H. Baker Jr., officer in charge of the Georgia Recruiting District, told guests and members of the Cherokee Company Sunday night at a banquet that the Navy and Georgia are more than proud of the young men who had left as raw recruits some weeks ago and had returned as an honor company.

The sailors, whose average age is slightly over 18 years, are now on a 14-day leave. Following the leave they will return to Naval installations and schools throughout the United States.

CPO Tom Roberts, chief of the Navy's Atlanta recruiting station, said that more than 50 percent of the seamen will go directly to service and technical schools. The others will attend attend schools in the near future.

At noon Monday the Cherokee Company is scheduled to be reviewed by Gov. Marvin Griffin in front of the State Capitol.

Sub Volcano Births New Pacific Isle

HONOLULU, Aug. 21 (AP)—A Navy transport plane commander said today a submarine volcano pushed a new island above the surface of the Pacific Saturday about 375 miles northwest of Honolulu.

"At 10,000 feet we could see two to three square miles of bubbling, smoking water," reported Cmdr. Thomas W. Heath, 45, Martinsville, Va.

Heath said his plane carrying 32 passengers and crewmen en route to Midway circled the area for 20 minutes.

Heath located the volcanic island as about 400 air miles northwest of Honolulu on the regular flight course to Midway.

Crew members and passengers said they saw at least an acre of exposed lava.

Korean Charged In Stoning of Georgia Soldier

SEOUL, (Monday) Aug. 22 (AP)—Provincial police at Incheon Sunday arrested Yoo Jae Whan, 22, for the stoning of an American lieutenant at the Wolmi Island causeway last Wednesday.

Second Lt. Wayne Hansen, Augusta, Ga., was taken to a hospital with a slight concussion. He was hit in the head by a rock during heated Korean demonstrations against the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission.

Police said Yoo would be charged with assault and battery.

Georgia's Future Musicians build for Tomorrow

In Atlanta alone, there are thousands of boys and girls learning to play an oboe or a flute, a trumpet or the drums . . . learning to subordinate self to the good of the whole as they strive to make their band the best band. Some will go on to become the Benny Goodmans, the Rubinssteins, the musical greats of tomorrow, but all are developing an appreciation of music, pride in accomplishment and a spirit of cooperation that will make for a better America.

Debutantes Pick Stunning Clothes

By MARY GRAY ANDERSON

Every college girl who plans to get into the campus whirl in September is putting some thought on her wardrobe now.

This includes the newly chosen Atlanta debutantes who will make studying, classroom hours, and campus activities a big part of their busy fall and winter schedules.

The debutantes agree that campus life breeds casualness for the most part of day to day routine. Simple wool dresses, sweaters and tailored skirts are as spiffed-up as anyone gets for their classes. Classic suits are handy for shopping and off-campus trips.

It looks like the straight up-and-down silhouettes will be your best bet in sportswear for College. Separates consisting of tunic top and skirt, loose semi-fitted jumpers, overblouse, tapered pants and knitted dresses in this silhouette look sleek, sophisticated and certainly new.

Dependable tweeds and flannels have kindled the college girls' interest. Charcoal brown is expected to enjoy the same popularity as charcoal gray this season. Other new charred shades in flannel that look good are darkened greens and anthracite blue.

Coats are slim and bulky. As a rule the box or blazer type jackets have been lengthened, shoulders have been narrowed and collars minimized.

Cashmere sweaters are still the mink stoles of the college crowd, with lambswool a close second.

Although a college wardrobe is 90 per cent casual, there will be a lot of formal dances, weekend parties, and church on Sunday that need a special dress to lift you out of that relaxed routine.

Debutante Robie Strickland, to be a junior at Randolph Macon this fall, takes to the heavenly look of an ice blue long formal of satin and nylon net. The satin strapless bodice is wrapped and fitted. The fit is adjustable by means of satin ribbons running through a buckle at the center of the midriff. The very full skirt has appliques of lace and sequins that form petals spaced around the wide expanse of circular net.

Ellen Ansley, bound for the University of Georgia in September, gives approval to the combination of wool and peau de soie in a party dress. Its unimposing simplicity makes it very wearable for college activities. The beige one-piece dress has a wool bodice with an over-blouse effect, three-quarter sleeves, and a plain, scooped neckline.

The bodice extends over the natural waistline, giving the dress a long torso look. Its only decoration is a small bow and sprinkles of rhinestones at the waist. The edge of the bodice is banded in the peau de soie of the full skirt.

Cary Minnich, who will attend Emory University this year, finds it hard to make a decision from the great selection of beautiful fashions this season. One of her favorites is a white lace, short formal with the empire waistline brought into focus with narrow red velvet ribbon sash and streamers to the hem. The decolete gown is scalloped and dotted with rhinestones at the top.

For church and town wear she likes the fresh appeal of a costume that combines a boxy tweed jacket, trimmed with velvet, over a sheer wool dress in brown. The dress has three-quarter sleeves, a simple tab collar, and the least bit of gathering in the skirt front.

As for accessories, they've found the smartest look is with large jewelry and small hats. Little pillboxes and crown huggers in velvet and soft velour make wonderful accents for this year's slimmer silhouettes.

For information call WA. 5050, Ext. 394 or send a self-addressed postcard to Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

Courtesy On Dates Important

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:
I am a girl of 17 and have been going steady with a boy of 18 for almost a year. He says he loves me very much but I don't know whether he does or not. He never comes to the door when we have a date.

He just sits in the car and honks. After our dates he doesn't walk me to the door either. He has met my parents but avoids coming into my house. We're always over to his house and I love his parents almost as if they were my own.

He told me once that he was sure of me. Could that be why he is so inconsiderate? Do you think he would wake up if I went out with somebody else?

We plan on getting married, but he once told my girl friend he wasn't ready to settle down. Then, another time, he told her he loved me and intended to marry me. What do you think of this situation?—Sheree.

I think your boy friend needs a few lessons in manners—but I also think you are partly to blame for this problem. You see, Sheree, the reason the boy feels sure of you is because you haven't insisted that he show you even little, common courtesies.

When he sits in the car and honks his horn for you, I don't think you should run out to him. Simply wait until he makes up his mind to come to the door.

When he asks why you didn't come out I suggest you tell him you are through running at his command. I think you should also insist that he accompany you to your door after your dates.

Have you ever tried to picture what marriage life would be like with this boy? If he shows little or no consideration for you now, don't you think he would show even less after you were married? One of the most important necessities for a happy marriage is showing consideration for each other.

My advice is to talk these things over with your boy friend; explain frankly, how you feel and see what happens. If he still thinks you are supposed to jump when he says so, I think you should date other boys, at least for a while. Perhaps, as you say, it might wake him up.

Nature's Girdle Is the Best Made

By IDA JEAN KAIN

A well-proportioned figure requires that the abdomen measure at least an inch and a half less than the bust circumference.

How does your figure meet this crucial test? There is no getting around it — as excess pounds pile on, the abdomen is the measurement that spreads. Fat midships and settled posture are to blame.

Nature's girdle can keep your figure streamlined for a lifetime, provided your weight is within reason and these important middle muscles are not allowed to go flabby.

There are three layers and four pairs of abdominal muscles — one set runs vertically from the top of the ribcage to the pelvic girdle; a second set covers the side front of the abdomen, biaswise; underneath these are the internal obliques, also on the bias, but in the opposite direction; and the transversalis runs horizontally and forms the third layer of the abdominal wall. What a girdle!

Knowing that your figure is braced with this good muscular foundation should give you incentive to take action to infuse elasticity into these muscles.

A little daily exercise, backed up with proper posture, will reshape your figure. These graduated exercises are borrowed from the WAC Manual. They are most effective.

Starting position for the abdominal exercises in today's routine: Lie on back with hands on top of upper leg. The hands are placed in this position in order to keep the elbows off the ground.

The arms should be relaxed so that the hands may slide toward the knees as the head and shoulders lift up.

Movement: Raise only head and shoulders off the ground and look toward the feet. Do not attempt to sit up. Hold position. Relax and repeat the exercise.

The hands should slide toward the knees as the chest is lifted. Increase the number of times the exercise can be performed consecutively.

One Leg Movement: Raise head and shoulders off the ground to look at left leg which is raised about 8 inches from the ground. Hold position.

Relax and repeat the exercise using the right leg. Do not attempt to sit up. The hands should slide toward the knees as the shoulders are lifted.

Side Movement: Raise head and right shoulder off ground, keeping left shoulder as nearly in position as possible.

Vacationers Tell Tales Of Snow and Skiing

By YOLANDE GWIN

Snow flurries during the current 90-degree heat wave here at home bring reports of activities of Atlantans who are skiing in the Alps and entering hotels in the Pacific Northwest through ice tunnels.

That former Atlantan, Mrs. Giuliano Prezzolini, who was Mrs. Virginia Dulaney Heid prior to her marriage last year, has written her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cobb Dulaney, of recent visits to Switzerland for "summer skiing."

The Prezzolinis, who live in Florence, Italy, have been in their villa outside the city during the summer but have made many excursions to the Alps. During the summer Mrs. Prezzolini has enjoyed many gabfests with Atlantans touring Europe, including Mr. and Mrs. Roby Robinson, Mrs. Dugas McCleskey, Mrs. Landon Quin, Mrs. Elsa Adair and others.

IN THIS COUNTRY, teen-ager Diane Blair got a big thrill when she stopped at Mount Rainier on a northwestern tour with her aunt, Miss Ruth Blair. They entered the large rustic lodge there through a tunnel of snow. Snow was up to the second-story windows at the lodge and the two Atlantans are telling their friends of sitting before a log fire in mid-July and enjoying it!

SPEAKING OF THE WEST, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schwab Jr. have returned from Sun Valley.

As soon as Mrs. Schwab got settled to routine in her Habersham road home she gathered some 30 members of the young married set for luncheon. A special guest was her cousin, Mrs. John Wyant Jr., who never suspected that when she arrived it would be a surprise birthday luncheon in her honor. Nor was she prepared to see her two sisters, Mrs. Lee Etheredge Jr. and Mrs. William Bush, and two friends, Mrs. D. Hudson Boyd and Mrs. Eugene M. Long, who drove up from Augusta to be on hand for the celebration.

DATE BOOKS ARE BEING CHECKED among the younger set this week due to the arrival of two pretty Florida girls who will be central figures at a round of parties. One is Miss Peggy McLemore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl McLemore of Orlando, and the other is Miss Cornelia Campbell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Campbell, formerly of Atlanta.

Peggy will visit Miss Mary Adair Dorsey and Cornelia will be with her cousin, Laura Dorsey, at the home of the Dorsey sisters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dorsey on 28th street. On Wednesday Mrs. Dorsey will entertain at a Coke party for her two daughters and their guests.

HOME AGAIN FROM A CRUISE to Bermuda are Miss Evelyn Hatfield and Mrs. Ernestine Jones.

AFTER A SUMMER at Lake Junaluska, N.C., and a stop-over of several days with her father, Scott Hudson Jr. at Highlands, N.C., Miss Lynn-Cottrax Hudson is back home. Her sister, Miss Catherine Hudson, left during the weekend for Highlands to visit her father.

MRS. JEAN CALLAWAY, who has been a patient at Piedmont Hospital for the past two weeks; will spend the remaining weeks of the summer at the country home of Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw at Dunwoody.

BACK HOME AGAIN in Long Island, N.Y., are Mr. and Mrs. George Puca and son Timmy who have been visiting Mrs. Puca's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cole.

Miss Janko Is Married At Club

Miss Donna Jo Janko, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Blumberg Janko, became the bride of Howard Berk Weinstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving C. Weinstein of Miami Beach, Fla., at a ceremony Sunday at the Progressive Club.

Rabbi Harry H. Epstein officiated. The bride's sister, Miss Madelyn Janko, was maid of honor and Milton Weinstein served as best man for his brother. The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Jacob A. Blumberg.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will reside at Gainesville, Fla., where they both are students at the University of Florida.

DAILY GUIDE—We have three days before us in which the accent is on Venus and Mars with a glance from Neptune, and behind this a powerful setup between Jupiter and Saturn.

The first combination could mean seaside romances, publicity for movie queens or bathing beauties, and a general accent on music, dancing, entertainment.

The evening hours take on a more intense tone and continue to be highly romantic through tomorrow evening.

However, there is an atmospheric tension building up to a dramatic climax so watch out weatherwise during this period. Jove could be in a passion; wind and waves reflecting his strong emotions.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, LEO! Although you may not receive the full benefits of Jupiter until next year, you ought to have had a little preview of more favorable times.

There are some duties and obligations still to be taken into consideration before you can be free to go into new circumstances which will give you greater independence, freedom and individuality.

There is an exciting seven years ahead for you, so don't hesitate about dropping some of the past behind you.

Romance, marriage, promotion, honors, popularity, rewards for past efforts are some of the possibilities.

REMEMBER— 65,000 ATLANTA TELEPHONE NUMBERS HAVE CHANGED

Approximately 65,000 telephone numbers in Atlanta are now 2-5 numbers—two letters and five numerals.

The change of eight central offices to the new numbering plan took place on schedule at 2:01 a.m. on Sunday.

All the new numbers are listed in the new directory. If you haven't already done so, please throw away your September, 1954 directory.

Here are three steps which will mean better service for everyone:

1. BE SURE TO DIAL THE FIRST TWO letters of the new central office names and all FIVE numerals. Using the old prefix means your call will not go through. In giving a new-type number to others, say it like this: "SYcamore 4 . . . nine-nine . . . nine-nine (SY4-9999)". It will be easily understood and remembered this way.

2. IF YOUR NUMBER HAS CHANGED, put your number card on your telephone. This will help you remember your new number.

3. CHECK THE NEW DIRECTORY before you place your calls—and throw away the old directory.

FAYE EMERSON ON TV

Stars Sub for Loretta Young

By FAYE EMERSON
NEW YORK, Aug. 21—When the Loretta Young show, a dramatic series, bows on NBC-TV on Sunday, August 22, it will be the first of an impressive array of Hollywood stars who will substitute for Miss Young, who is currently in Honolulu convalescing from her recent illness.

In addition to Miss Russell, who will act as hostess for the first two shows, such stars as Barbara Stanwyck, Joseph Cotten, Merle Oberon, Irene Dunne and John Wayne will take over this chore on successive weeks of the program, while other players will be featured in the dramatic plays.

This personal tribute of her friends is not only an unusual expression of regard on their part, but also is establishing something unique and unprecedented in TV programming, with stars from all networks and all top studios taking part in the dramatic series.

The first show of this series will be "Fear Me Not," starring Preston Foster and Phyllis Thaxter.

From what I hear, Liberace is a sensation in Paris. The French had never heard of Liberace, his candelabra, his mother, or his brother George, but in a city like sophisticated Paris, sequin dinner jackets cannot pass without some comment, and I imagine it won't soon forget Liberace.

Most comedians have a reputation, in the business at any rate, of being pretty unfunny in private life.

But this certainly does not apply to two of our best new comedians—Jonathan Winters and George Gobel. Not long ago I saw Jonathan keep a whole party in hysterics for four straight hours. And George Gobel is perhaps even more enchanting off-camera than on. His warm-ups are sometimes as good as his show.

I think the finest comedian I know off-stage is Phil Silvers. I know one bearded gentleman who goes completely to pieces if Phil just points at him.

It has been 10 years since Bess Myerson was crowned at Atlantic City as Miss America. She probably wouldn't have any trouble capturing the title again today.

Bess has the rare combination of beauty, intelligence and talent. She plays the piano beautifully. As a matter of fact, she started out as a music teacher. She is now one of the most successful women in television, and rakes in a yearly salary that keeps her well supplied with pretties.

I don't believe in soap operas in the nighttime viewing hours, but I rather wish the World of Mr. Sweeney—which may be classified as a soap but certainly doesn't act like it—was on at a later hour so the whole family could enjoy it. I hate to use a sticky word like "lovable," but it is the only one I can think of that exactly fits Charlie Ruggles as Mr. Sweeney, and the show has a pleasant charm that I feel appeals to all ages.

ALWAYS JAN — Janis Page, Broadway and Hollywood favorite, stars in It's Always Jan, new situation comedy series which debuts Sept. 10. The story is about several young women who share a New York apartment.

FEAR STRIKES OUT

How Shadows Freed Piersall Scores on TV

By J. P. SHANLEY

New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution
NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Climax! Provided an absorbing hour of television on Channel 2 in its dramatization of a true story of an athlete's winning fight against mental illness.

The presentation was "Fear Strikes Out," based on the recent book of the same title. It dealt with the mental breakdown and subsequent recovery of Jim Piersall, the Boston Red Sox outfielder, who currently is playing a vital part in his team's battle for the American League pennant.

Mel Goldberg's television adaptation of the book by Piersall and Al Hirschberg offered a forthright and compelling study of a sensitive, introspective athlete of unusual ability who cracked under the pressures of domestic cares and concern over his career.

Tab Hunter, as Piersall, looked the part of the ballplayer. This was a point in his favor, but the role was a demanding one that required a great deal more than a superficial resemblance. The assignment called for a delicately balanced impersonation of a real person who leaves the world of reality and is restored after careful psychiatric treatment. Hunter's performance was perceptive and believable.

There were restrained and convincing performances also by Mona Freeman, as the ballplayer's wife, John Conte, as a psychiatrist, and Robert Armstrong, as Piersall's father.

The topic of mental health has been handled rather shamefully on other television presentations. But the video story of Jim Piersall wisely refrained from melodramatic hokum. It was a straightforward and effective job of exploring a man's problem and the manner in which he, with the help of others, overcame it.

Dr. Bunche Hails Atom Conference

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (AP)—Ralph J. Bunche, undersecretary of the United Nations, said today the first international conference on peaceful use of atomic energy was "highly successful."

Bunche flew in from Geneva, where the conference was held, with Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Strauss indicated he would make no comment on the conference until he makes his report in Washington.

TV-Bound Benny To Quit Radio

By VAL ADAMS

Special to The Atlanta Constitution
NEW YORK, Aug. 21—For the first time in 23 years Jack Benny will not be on radio when the 1955-56 season begins next month. The comedian, who has been a fixture on Sundays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. since May 1932, will devote himself in the future to television.

Benny's formal retirement from radio came to light indirectly in an announcement by the Columbia Broadcasting System. It said Edgar Bergen will star in a new radio show on Sundays from 7:05 to 8 p.m. beginning Oct. 2.

When questioned about Benny, CBS said it had no plans for resuming his program. The "Amos 'n' Andy" show, which had been heard on Sundays from 7:30 to 8 p.m., also has been canceled.

However, the "Amos 'n' Andy Music Hall" will continue on Mondays through Fridays from 9:30 to 9:55 p.m.

Benny's departure from radio was not wholly unexpected. Last spring the American Tobacco Co., which sponsored his radio show, announced it would not renew the contract.

Benny will resume his television show over the CBS network on Sept. 25. It will be presented on alternate Sundays from 7:30 to 8 p.m. In addition, Benny will star in six productions in the Show of Stars series, which is televised by CBS every fourth Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

David Wayne will serve as master of ceremonies and guest star on the onetime Judy Garland show to be televised in color by

Swaps-Nashua Race Set for TV on Aug. 31

Special to The Atlanta Constitution
NEW YORK, Aug. 21—The big noise about whether Swaps or Nashua is the better three-year-old will be decided at Washington Park, Chicago, on Wednesday, Aug. 31, and CBS-TV will televise the "dream match" starting at 5 p.m.

The meeting of the Eastern and Western thoroughbreds also will feature two of America's greatest jockeys. Willie Shoemaker, currently the nation's leading jockey, will be on Swaps, undefeated as a three-year-old. The old master, Eddie Arcaro, will ride Nashua, the fifth ranking money-winner of all time.

CBS Sept. 24, from 9:30 to 11 p.m. The program will mark the premiere of the Ford Star Jubilee series, which will be presented every fourth Saturday.

Former President Truman, who has announced he plans a speaking campaign to help return the Democratic Party to the White House, will have one of his addresses carried by television and radio. His speech at a Labor Day rally in Detroit Sept. 5 will be presented from 2 to 2:30 p.m. by CBS-TV and the American Broadcasting Co. radio network.

Czech Rides Coffin To Freedom of West
NUERNBERG, Germany, Aug. 21 (AP)—Hidden in a coffin-like wooden box at the bottom of a carload of coal, a Czech miner escaped by freight train to West Germany, police reported today.

The 45-year-old miner, whose name was temporarily withheld, said he bored holes in the side of the box through which to breathe.

U.S. 41, South of Macon, is an example of the type of heavy-duty highway needed in Georgia. Traffic on this durable concrete road is more than 3300 vehicles per day.

Why Georgia roads should be CONCRETE

Whether you drive for pleasure or business, there are two reasons why you have a vital interest in the kind of pavement used. 1. You pay for Georgia roads with your license fees, gas and other taxes. 2. Your safety is at stake.

Concrete roads give you more for your money. Here's why:

Concrete's first cost is moderate, yet it can be designed for any axle load. And it will keep that load-carrying capacity for life.

Concrete costs less to maintain than other pavements as proved by records kept by 24 state highway departments.

Concrete lasts longer—at least twice as long as the next most durable pavement commonly built—according to latest data released by the Highway Research Board.

Moderate first cost + low maintenance cost + long life = low annual cost, the true measure of pavement economy.

Concrete is safer too. Its gritty surface grips your tires firmly, permitting you to stop faster without skidding, wet or dry. And its light color reflects more light, giving you maximum visibility at night. Remember, when you can't see, you just can't drive safely.

CONCRETE ROAD ARITHMETIC
Moderate First Cost
+ Low Maintenance Cost
+ Long Years Of Service
= Low Annual Cost

Concrete roads give the longest service, at lowest over-all cost, with greatest safety. If these items are important to you, ask your public officials for CONCRETE on U. S. 78 and other main roads.

CADET TRAVELERS DE-PLANE AT DOBBINS
(L-R) Ralph McBride, Len Chastain, Frank White

3 CAP Cadets Return From Global Touring

A trio of Georgia Civil Air Patrol cadets returned Sunday with glowing accounts of tours in Israel, Greece and Canada.

The three cadets, all captains are Ralph McBride, Smyrna, who went to Canada; Frank White, Atlanta, who went to Israel, and Len Chastain, Marietta, who went to Greece.

They were met at Dobbins Air Force Base by CAP Lt. Col. H. B. Wynn after flying in from Washington.

Cadet McBride spent 28 days traveling across Canada by plane and bus with other CAP youth. He began in Montreal, was intrigued with Quebec and lifted in a ski chair in Vancouver. Official receptions were attended in Alberta and British Columbia.

Frank White was amazed at the modernization of Israel's industry and pleased with the friendliness of the people. His group viewed tire and glass factories, lived in private homes and looked on historic ruins. He mentioned swimming in the Dead, Red and Mediterranean seas.

The visit was concluded with a farewell dinner given by the commanding general of the Israeli Air Force.

Being selected for the exchange is the highest honor that can come to a CAP cadet. The Georgia CAP youth were named for trips by National CAP headquarters in Washington after being recommended by their units.

Some 300 air-minded youth from 22 nations took part in this year's International Cadet Exchange. Sponsored by CAP and similar organizations in the other countries, the exchange is designed to promote world brotherhood.

Flouting of U.S. Civil Liberties Scored in Fund's First Report

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—“Alarm” flouting of civil liberties in the United States was noted today in the first report of the Fund for the Republic. The fund's president, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, declared: “Although in some particulars the atmosphere is better than it was five years ago, the misunderstanding of civil liberties, the indifference to them, and the violations of them, to which we too easily grow accustomed, are still such as to give cause for alarm.”

The fund was authorized by the trustees of the Ford Foundation in 1951 and incorporated in 1952. In February, 1953, the foundation added $14,000,000 to its original appropriation of $1,000,000, and the country could be dealt with only by methods that drastically departed from those which have characterized Anglo-American jurisprudence.” He continued: “The range of suspected persons has been enormously extended by resort to guilt by association. The evidence offered to show that a man is a danger to American institutions has often been farcically remote. The treatment accorded suspected persons in congressional investigations and administrative hearings has not always been that contemplated by the sixth amendment.”

SIXTH AMENDMENT

The sixth amendment guarantees the “right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury” in all criminal prosecutions. “A kind of continuous propaganda and social pressure,” Hutchins reported, “has been kept up that has tended to suppress conscientious nonconformity. Political advantage has accrued from claiming that others were indifferent to the threat of communism.”

“The result has been that governmental officers, university presidents and ordinary citizens have felt it necessary to exhibit inordinate anxiety on this score.” “The Fund for the Republic takes no position on these matters, beyond affirming its faith in the principles upon which our government is founded, as set forth in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.”

“The fund does believe, however, that the American people, who must take a position on these matters, should pay attention to them and be adequately informed about them. The object of the fund is to help supply the requisite information.”

TRADITION OF THE WEST

Hutchins noted that hard-core civil rights were the “distinguishing characteristic of the Western tradition; they are the deepest values in American life.”

“America,” he said, “would be unrecognizable without freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of religion, freedom of association and the freedom to differ; without due process of law and the equal protection of the laws; without the conviction that all men are created equal and are entitled to equality of opportunity.” Projects currently under way under auspices of the fund include a study on “blacklisting in the motion picture, radio and television industries,” authorized in September, 1954, with $31,215 of the original appropriation of $100,000 unexpended as of May 31.

A study of “post office interference with the flow of information and opinion,” authorized May, 1955, with the original $25,000 still available as of the end of that month; and a grant of $25,000, also in May, to Stanford University for an “analysis of testimony of witnesses in proceedings relative to communism.”

Soviet Magazine Asks Eden Visit

LONDON, Aug. 21—The Soviet magazine News says the Russian people hope British Prime Minister Eden soon will visit their country. Commenting on the scheduled visit to Britain next spring of Russia's government chief, the News said last night: “We hope the Soviet public will soon have the opportunity to welcome Sir Anthony Eden, who has already visited Moscow on previous occasions.”

Jacksonville's $125 Million Plan Clearing Slums

Port Takes Big Strides Against Blighted Areas

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Staff Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 21—Fast becoming one of the South's big cities, this once sleepy Florida port is beginning to challenge Atlanta in population growth, public improvements and commercial expansion.

Although less than half the size of its mighty Georgia neighbor, metropolitan Jacksonville is approaching the 400,000 population mark.

(The Florida State Bureau of Vital Statistics last week placed Duval County's population at 396,000—an increase of 92,000 in five years.)

Equally spectacular is the rate at which Jacksonville is pouring money into a vast $125,000,000 program of building bridges, expressways, street improvements, parking facilities, schools, governmental buildings, power plant expansion and sewer extensions.

Meanwhile, private capital has invested during the last five years more than $50,000,000 in new industries, hospitals and skyscraper office buildings.

Jacksonville has no slum clearance and urban redevelopment project as such, because Florida laws do not yet permit it. But public improvements scheduled for the next five years are expected to clear out 2,000 buildings in slum and blighted areas.

Although Atlanta is a long way ahead of Jacksonville in expressway construction, the Florida city is coming up fast in $70,000,000 program financed by the state, with federal aid.

37-MILE MAJOR STREET NETWORK

When this program is completed in about five years it will give Jacksonville a network of about 37 miles of major street and highway improvements, including 16 miles of north-south expressway, 21 miles of four-lane boulevards, three huge bridges and a big railroad overpass.

Of this projected $70,000,000 program, $36,000,000 already has been spent or is committed.

Already completed are the two new toll bridges over the Broad St. Johns River as the first links in the system. One, the high-level Mathews Bridge downstream, is an $11,000,000 span which has opened up a fast-developing Arlington residential area across the river.

A $1,750,000 four-lane divided boulevard with limited or controlled access has been completed 15 miles southward toward the beaches.

Downstream from the heart of Jacksonville's business district, the new $6,000,000 Fuller Warren Bridge gives Jaxons a new access route to South Jacksonville.

North of Warren Bridge a $2,500,000 Myrtle avenue overpass is nearing completion over the railroad yards.

Meanwhile, across town to the east a north-south Haines street route is being widened for more than a mile into a four-lane boulevard.

Only partially under contract as yet, the 10-mile north-south expressway will begin near Imeson Airport on U.S. 17 north.

The Florida State Improvement Commission issued $36,000,000 in revenue certificates to start this program, and the Legislature has created a Duval County Expressway Authority empowered to issue another $23,000,000 in bonds to finish the job with an additional $12,000,000 in state funds.

The bonds will be retired by Duval County's share of state gasoline tax collections and tolls from the bridges. The only cost to the city will be $2,000,000 for lighting and moving utilities.

One of the most dramatic of Jacksonville's public improvements is a $4,200,000 project in which the city is clearing out and building up four blocks of downtown waterfront for an 1,800-car public parking facility.

At one time shipping was concentrated at the downtown piers. But shipping gradually moved downstream to newer port facilities. The old docks and piers were abandoned to become derelict, rotting, rusting eyesores.

PLAN EMBRACES BEAUTY, UTILITY

Nothing was done about it until 1950 when public support crystallized for a beautification project that also would serve the utilitarian purpose of providing badly needed off-street parking facilities downtown.

There was some opposition to municipal action from private parking lot operators, but not much.

The old, rotting docks and piers were condemned and cleared out for two city blocks on each side of the Main Street Bridge. Muck and silt was removed from the river for a distance of 400 feet from the shore.

A bulkhead 400 feet out and 1,600 feet long has been built and sand is being dredged upstream and hauled downriver on barges to fill up 16 acres with 700,000 cubic yards of new earth.

The lot will be operated by the city with parking rates of 25 cents an hour up to 75 cents a day or $10 monthly. The bonds will be retired by these parking fees and revenue from other meters.

Redevelopment of the waterfront will be extended several blocks further downstream by early construction of a new $8,500,000 Duval County courthouse and jail. The county has issued revenue bonds to finance this project and will levy up to four mills additional taxes to pay for the job.

Not content with these projected improvements, Jaxons are looking ahead to still greater expansions. The Legislature has granted authority for a special registration bond election in which voters will be asked within the next few months to approve $25,000,000 worth of construction.

That program will include a new city hall, a 3,500-seat auditorium, a 10,000-seat sports arena and a mammoth sewer and drainage program.

These improvements also will be financed by revenue bonds, secured by ad valorem taxes, a utilities tax and the city's share of the 5-cent per package state tax on cigarettes.

The Jacksonville public improvement program is rounded out by an $18,000,000 school construction program in the last five years and a $30,000,000 expansion of its municipally owned power plant.

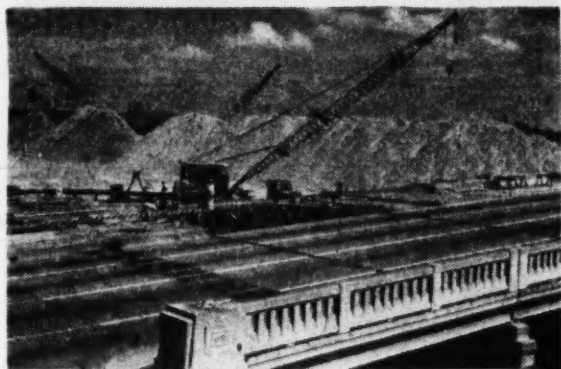

Such governmental progress was bound to attract increased private capital investment. The most spectacular of these is the Prudential Insurance Co.'s $11,000,000 22-story office building, a new 300-bed $6,000,000 Baptist Memorial Hospital, and a 19-story $5,000,000 skyscraper built by the Independent Life Insurance Co. just across the street from the new $2,250,000 Federal Reserve branch bank.

Nearby, owners of the big George Washington Hotel are planning to double the size of that hostelry. The DuPont interests are clearing an entire city block and reportedly have intriguing plans for a huge Florida National Bank office building development.
